Introduction

The prestigious International Maritime Law Arbitration Moot Competition [IMLAM] was established in 2000 by the University of Queensland. The IMLAM is a competition for law students, either undergraduate or postgraduate. Students from all countries are eligible. In 2006, Murdoch University School of Law took over the organisation of this moot.

The moot problem typically involves a commercial shipping dispute, which is to be determined by an arbitral panel according to the LMAA Terms or other equivalent rules. The problem is designed to incorporate difficult but ‘real world’ issues of substantive maritime law in an arbitration context.

The Problem is distributed in early December, and registrations close in mid-January. Each team prepares comprehensive memoranda in support of the Claimant and the Respondent in the dispute, due for submission in April. The oral arguments typically take place, depending on the host University for the year, in the last week of June or first week of July. In the general rounds each team argues twice for each side. The top scoring 8 teams proceed to a knockout final series culminating in the grand final.

The following institutions have hosted the competition since 2006:

2006 - Murdoch University
2007 - Victoria University Melbourne
2008 - Murdoch University
2009 - The University of Queensland
2010 - University of Technology Sydney
2011 - National University of Singapore
2012 – Queensland University of Technology
2013 – University of Southampton

The IMLAM Moot has been extremely well supported by the judiciary, the legal profession and maritime lawyers in Australia and Asia since its inception. In particular, the Federal and Supreme Courts in Australia have donated the use of their courtrooms for the grand final, as have Maxwell Chambers, Singapore. The past Grand final panels have included eminent jurists such as:

The Honourable Lord Phillips, former President of the Supreme Court of England;

His Honour Robert French Chief Justice of the High Court of Australia (then a Federal Court judge);
His Honour Justice James Allsop on multiple occasions (former President of the NSW Court of Appeal and now Chief Justice of the Federal Court of Australia);

Her Honour Justice Judith Prakash, Supreme Court of Singapore;

His Honour Justice Steven Rares, Federal Court of Australia;

His Honour Justice Andrew Greenwood, Federal Court of Australia.

Also part of the grand final panel are members of the profession and distinguished maritime arbitrators. David Martin-Clark of Stone Chambers has been a regular and respected member of the grand final panels, travelling from London to take part every year bar one during the 13 year history of the moot.

The 2013 competition, hosted by the University of Southampton, was the first time the competition had been hosted outside the Australia & Asia-Pacific region. It was extremely successful, with a record 24 teams taking place including 5 new teams from Europe.

It is pleasing that the 2013 IMLAM competition, hosted in the country at the world centre for maritime law and arbitration, was so well received. In particular UK law firms, chambers and arbitrators all threw their support behind the competition. Many travelled to Southampton to act as arbitrators. Several firms gave financial support. Clyde &Co were kind enough to host the award function at the conclusion of the moot at their London premises.
International Maritime Law Arbitration Moot 2014

The fourteenth annual International Maritime Law Arbitration Moot is hosted in 2014 by a long time participant in the moot, the University of Hong Kong. The oral rounds will take place from July 4-8 2014.

It is hoped that the excellent venue of Hong Kong will attract another bumper field of participants, particularly from that region. Further, we hope to receive the same support from the shipping industry, maritime law profession and arbitrators of Hong Kong and beyond in order to assist us in making the competition a memorable one.
