

THE UNIVERSITY OF HONG KONG

FACULTY OF LAW

MASTER OF LAWS IN

ARBITRATION AND

DISPUTE RESOLUTION

Arbitration, mediation and negotiation are internationally recognized as effective methods of dispute resolution and are of increasing importance in Hong Kong, Asia and internationally. The HKU Faculty of Law is offering a specialised and professionally accredited Master of Laws in Arbitration and Dispute Resolution on both a Full Time and Part Time basis. This interdisciplinary programme is designed to equip professionals with the necessary knowledge, skills and expertise in important dispute resolution methods, including negotiation, mediation and arbitration.

This unique programme is designed not only for legal professionals, but also for members of the business and financial community, corporate counsel, specialists in the construction and engineering fields, mediation and arbitration practitioners, government officials and many others wishing to improve their dispute resolution knowledge and skills. A law degree is preferable but not essential. Fellowship level membership in the Chartered Institute of Arbitrators is available to graduates (subject to fulfilling certain requirements) of this LL.M. programme upon completion of an interview. ***

Applications for admission to this LL.M. Degree programme in the 2016-2017 academic year are welcome and should be made online at <http://www.aal.hku.hk/tpg/faculty/faculty-law>. Please also visit our website at www.law.hku.hk/llmarbdr/index.php for more details and registration information.

*Continuing Education Fund
(CEF)*

Five courses of this LL.M programme have been included in the list of reimbursable courses for the HKSAR Government's Continuing Education Fund purposes. You can check your eligibility and the details for CEF from website (<http://www.sfaa.gov.hk/cef/>).
