^ Students may choose course(s) listed under "IP law sub-stream", "IT law sub-stream", and "Electives (Department of Law)" as elective course(s), subject to section 3(d) below.
(a) For full-time students, the normal period of study is one academic year. In order to graduate you must complete 36 credits (equivalent to four 9-credit courses) in each regular semester, and a total of 72 credits (equivalent to eight 9-credit courses).

(b) For part-time students, the normal study period is two academic years. In order to graduate you must complete 18 credits (equivalent to two 9-credit courses) in each regular semester, and a total of 36 credits (equivalent to four 9-credit courses) in each of the two academic year.

(c) Students with a degree in a discipline other than law must take LLAW6160 Legal system and methods as one of their law elective courses.

(d) In any case, students must not choose more than four courses from the courses offered within the two sub-streams or the additional electives listed in the syllabus.

(4) Online Course Selection

(a) Please use the online system during the 6‒9 August selection period to choose ALL your courses for the entire 2019‒2020 academic year, as detailed in section (1) above.

(i) Courses in the January semester are optional, and have an intensive (compressed) class schedule. Credits earned will count towards your total for 2nd semester.

(ii) Courses in the Summer semester are optional, and have an intensive (compressed) class schedule. Students may take only one Summer semester course in any single academic year.

(b) When your course choices are saved online, the system will prompt you to select up to three extra “back-up courses” in case any of your preferences is full, see 4(d) below.

(c) You may use the online system to modify your choice of courses before the end of the course selection period. The General Office will begin to process for all enrolment requests only after the system is closed on 9 August.

(d) Most elective courses have fixed quotas, so selecting a course online may not guarantee a place. Priority in oversubscribed courses is given to students needing to fulfil syllabus requirements.

(e) The General Office will confirm your enrolments by email at the end of August.

(5) Changes to Course Selection

(a) You must obtain prior General Office approval if your intended plan of study differs in any way from sections 3 and 4(a) above. Write before 31 August 2019 to Ms Daisy Lai (LLMCL@hku.hk), explaining your reasons for requesting a change with a study plan, and citing your full name, student number, programme title and mode of study. Example: Chan Tai Man John, 3035123456, LLM(IT&IPL) PT2.

(b) If a course is full and you are unable to enrol into it, you may request to be waitlisted for that course by sending a completed Application for Course(s) Amendment to Ms Estella Ng (elwng@hku.hk) before the first class of the course. The names on the waitlist will be recorded on a first-come-first-serve basis. The waitlist will be closed and no further names added if too many names are already on the waitlist. Ms Ng will process your request if a place becomes available. If your name remains on the waitlist, you may attend the first class and write your name on the attendance sheet for the record.

(c) You may change your selection and finalise your course enrolment by sending a completed Application for Course(s) Amendment to Ms Estella Ng (elwng@hku.hk) during the add‒drop period of each semester or intensive course (but see note below*). Ms Ng will process your request if a place becomes available.

* Dropping an intensive course in mid‒semester means that you may be unable to make up lost credits in that same semester, and will need to take an extra course in the semester that follows.

(c) The General Office deals with hundreds of queries during the add‒drop period and may be unable to respond immediately to your request. If you receive no reply to a submitted Application for Course Amendments form, you may assume that the request has been accepted. If your name is missing from a course attendance list, then when classes begin simply inform the course instructor and politely ask if he or she could add your name to the attendance list.
(d) No amendments to course enrolment will be permitted after the add-drop period.

(6) Registering for a Dissertation
If you are considering whether to undertake a research dissertation, you should first contact your intended supervisor as soon as possible to discuss the proposed topic. You will find the academic interests of faculty members listed at Faculty's website. Further details and instructions for preparing a dissertation proposal are given in the course descriptions under LLAW6014 (18 credits) and LLAW6054 (9 credits).

(7) Important Hong Kong Visa Information for Non-local Students
Final year students intending to apply for a new Hong Kong student, work or IANG visa after completing their programmes should note that all applications to the Immigration Department must include appropriate proof of completion, for example, a final transcript or certificate of graduation issued by the HKU Registry. Course grades for 2nd semester are normally available each year in late June or early July; grades for Summer semester courses will be available only after September. The Immigration Department typically takes 8 weeks to process visa applications, and it is recommended that non-local students complete ALL of their programme requirements (including submitting a final dissertation if necessary) by the end of the 2nd semester to avoid a delay in the issue of a new visa.
